Once children have grown out of their Jack Be Nimble Play Structure, it might be time to go to the source: Candlestick Point Playground. Children will be pushed to do their best as they explore each crevice of the structure. This structure takes the fun in more traditional layout and adds a bit of fitness to get Jack nimble enough to jump over even the tallest of candlesticks. The Lily Pad Challenge Bridge will start their journey to jump-readiness with its varied height pods in a slightly curved setup. Children might opt for the Leaf Climber to warm up for the Overhead Swing Ring Ladder. On the play structure side, kids will be greeted with classics like a Left Turn Slide and a Ship's Wheel, but also be provided with some new pieces like the Spiral Climber and the Rock Hole Climber.
