The standard hardware for many Frog Furnishings products is zinc coated. This option works adequately well, but the zinc coated standard hardware simply doesn't have the durability and weather resistance many customers require with their outdoor furniture. To keep your benches, receptacles and tables looking great and standing up to years of outdoor seasons, choose with the Frog Furnishings Stainless Steel Hardware Upgrade. For those who deal with lots of precipitation and humidity, the change to stainless steel can really extend the life of Frog Furnishings Plastics amenities. This set of hardware is the same as the zinc coated, except for that extra toughness and extra shine. You can easily change out already installed zinc coated hardware or buy the stainless steel upgrade with your new furniture and install it right the first time. However, when you choose your upgrade option, be sure to choose the right equipment for the right product. Frog Furnishings Stainless Steel Hardware Upgrades come in two different options: either benches and receptacles or tables. The first option should work for all benches and receptacles, and the same is true for tables with the second option. So, make your choice, get your order in, and upgrade to stainless steel hardware today for more attractive and more durable outdoor furniture!
