The Two Panel Craggy Knob Climber is a free-standing play structure which offers two ways for children to climb. The inner two panels are molded into an authentic looking rocky pattern with colorful injection-molded hand grips to simulate an authentic rock climbing experience, while the outer parts of the structure are uniquely designed metal bars from which a child can climb, swing or hang. An advantage of this two panel climber is that its required safety zone is relatively narrow compared to other play structures of the same height, which makes it ideal for smaller spaces in play areas that would otherwise be difficult to fill. A variety of color options are available for the climbing walls, hand holds, and bars, offering a large degree of customization options.
