Bring the mountain to your playground with the Four Panel Craggy Mountain Climber. Strategically placed among the peaks, more traditional metal climbers lurk. Two vertical ladders next to the end pieces offer straight-forward climbing options. In the middle, a horizontally angled wavy ladder offers children the chance to shimmy across from one side to the next or simply to find their own path across the structure. The rock-y walls invite children to push the boundaries of how they climb. The hand grips illuminate one potential route, the holes add variation to their course and the stone marks on the rotationally molded plastic slabs add a final way to hold on. Order the climber in your choice of colors for your powder coat painted steel, rotationally molded plastic and even hand grips. Bring whimsy to your playground with the Four Panel Craggy Mountain Climber.
