The Five Panel Craggy Alpine Climber is one of the longest climbing walls that we have available. It contains five panels of durable roto-molded plastic rock walls lengthened even further by four sections of metal climbing bars. The wall curves at both ends into an 'S' shape, which gives the structure stability, enables the lengthy structure to fit into a space less than 25 feet long, and allows kids to climb it at every angle. The climbing walls are even shaped and arranged to resemble a natural alpine ridge, which makes it visually appealing and perfect for kids to have imaginary mountaintop adventures on. Both the climbing walls and the metal bars are specially designed with hand and foot holds spaced in such a way to make them ideal for climbing by any child five to twelve years of age. The metal bars and plastic walls come in a variety of colors, so you can even customize this wall to fit your preferences or match your existing play equipment.
