The Pegasus is the full-sized version of the Weenotes Merry with more notes and a heavier structure to produce a deeper, more varied sound. It features a wide layout with 23 anodized aluminum keys, giving it access to both the A Minor and C Major pentatonic scales. Its impressive range of notes make it an ideal instrument for more those with some musical experience, although of course this should not discourage aspiring musicians of any size, age, or level of ability from playing it. This model features an improved design to make it extremely resistant against outdoor conditions and frequent use, despite its large number of components. The frame has a dark green coloration to help it match natural outdoor surroundings, and add to the sculptural appearance of the instrument. A number of different mounting options are available to order, making this an easy piece to install anywhere, and at any height to make it as accessible as possible.
