The quartet of instruments which make up the Freenotes Deluxe Ensemble produce a diverse but harmonious range of sounds. The Tuned Drums give the group its rhythm, with five different pitches to give the drummer room to be creative. The Yantzee forms the bass of the group, with resonant low notes that don't cover up the other sounds. The Swirl and the Imbarimba form the melody, with their impressive range of notes in the upper octaves. Both have access to the C Major and A Minor Keys, but the resonant aluminum chimes of the Swirl sound significantly different than the bright, exotic notes of the Imbarimba's fiberglass keys. In addition to the highly unique sound of each instrument they also very different structures and appearances. This ensures that each of them will stand out, and encourages users to experiment and take turns trying them all. Although this ensemble covers all the important components of a complete band, it also synergizes well with any other Freenotes instruments you might decide to add on later.
