The Sculptural Ensemble includes six outdoor instruments chosen specifically because of their beautiful appearance as well as their sound. Each of them uses anodized aluminum components which are struck by mallets to produce bright, ringing notes. However, their wide range of pitches, from the low gong-like sounds of the Contrabass Chimes to the light plinking notes of the Aria, ensures that each of them can be heard distinctly even when played at the same time. All of the metal components have a highly resistant and weatherproof finish that ensures that even the most airy and elegant looking instruments, such as the Manta Ray, will still sound exquisite after years of use. Although this set of instruments is already complete with everything you could need, other instruments like the Tuned Drums can be added onto it for an even more diverse sound. A variety of mounting options are also available upon request from our talented sales representatives, making them easy to install in any outdoor space.
