The Expanded Metal Pipe Frame Bench without Back features a minimal design to make it compact, durable, and convenient. Like all MyTCoat backless benches, this model is short and easy to step over, making it useful by never being in the way. It is accessible from both sides, offering much more flexibility on how and where people decide to sit. The framework of the bench is straightforward and strong, with two metal pipes that arch above the ground to form the arms and legs of the bench with two cross-beams connecting them. These arches act as convenient armrests, but also help to prevent people from lying down so that the bench remains clear for everyone to use. This seat can be mounted on soft ground with the in-ground mount or on concrete with the surface mount. Be sure to talk to a sales associate for more details.
