The Fire Station Playhouse is a great accessory for indoor-outdoor imagination-driven activities. There are few professions nobler than a firefighter, so it's understandable why it's one of the earliest careers that children learn to idolize and emulate. With the fire station playhouse, kids can play the role of community heroes, putting out imaginary fires or rescuing friends from precarious situations. With a robust design, made from commercial grade HDPE plastic, this structure sports a shelf, a roof, and signage, along with graphic displays that will signify roles even to kids who are too young to read. This can be assembled in a playground or park, as well as along a trike track, or even in the comfort of a library or classroom. Anywhere kids go to play, learn, and let their imaginations run wild, this playhouse can find a productive home.
