Survey the playground from atop the barrel-shaped metal Silo Climber. Made for children ages 5 - 12, it provides an excellent place for children to work on their core muscle strength by lifting themselves up as they scale it. The rounded shape with four arched vertical poles is a convenient shape for multiple children to climb. The horizontal poles create an area that can be climbed safely. In particular, the octagonal inner bars create corners that can be held onto with a greater level of security. This structure is freestanding making it a great complement to existing equipment or one of our other playground equipment pieces.
