If you are looking for an adorable, yet practical workspace for your kids or toddlers than the Workbench by Nature of Early Play is the solution you are looking for. The Workbench is a perfect surface for whatever work kids need to get done. Whether it's homework or coloring, this versatile table can be used for any of the important projects in their busy (or not so busy) schedules. Sitting at a height of about two-feet, it is optimally shaped for the youngest workers and artisans (especially those between the ages of two and five). There is a lower level to the table, where tools and materials such as crayons and glue can be kept out of the way, but still within reach. To make even better use of this bottom space, add storage containers for organization. This unit is available in green or blue.
