The Trackride without Platforms allows children to soar through the air without touching the ground. This model does not have platforms at the ends of the track, making it better suited for older kids. Simply by grabbing the Trackride's comfortable handle and hanging on tight, they will be rapidly and safely transported to the other side, where another child can then use it to ride back. For additional momentum and a faster ride, kids can get a short running start before they grab onto the handle. It is set at an appropriate height so that almost all kids should have no difficulty reaching it, and taller kids can simply lift their legs to avoid having them drag along the ground. This unique and exciting activity is bound to become the favorite of kids on any playground.
