Kids will shoot past cloud 9 and straight to outer space on the Logan's Dome Climber. Constructed out of three rotationally molded plastic panels, the Logan's Dome Climber is an out-of-this-world design. Each panel is covered in a variety of bumps and holes, providing children of different sizes multiple gripping points regardless of their hand size and grip strength. The entire climber mimics a small hut with its three ground-level entry points that can be crawled through. Center in the top is an opening where all three panels meet. The Logan's Dome Climber is our rotationally molded plastic that will blend in nicely with neutral or primary-colored playgrounds. Children will feel inspired as they look upon this tortoise-like climber.
