The School Age Lateral Rock Wall is a demanding physical challenge that kids will embrace as a fun opportunity to test themselves. Easily graspable plastic notches are safely affixed all around the wall and provide helpful points for a youngster to grab onto with their hands or to push off of with their feet. The wall even features handles and footholds on the sides of the unit. In the process of play, kiddos will end up enhancing their problem solving, gross motor skills, coordination, and upper and lower body strength. This installation is a great way for a playground builder to promote adolescent fitness in a subtle way. And its smaller area opens up opportunities in placement for those who are looking to complete a site that requires a final touch to fill up the grounds. This climber can be installed one of two ways to best accommodate two different age groups (2-5 or 5-12). Consider adding this wall to your schoolyard, daycare, or recreation center today.
