The R-Town Ambulance is a big and bold pretend play vehicle that will instantly have kids crowding around to get inside and begin acting out dramatic stories of medical rescues. Children can take on the roles of emergency medical technicians and simulate scenarios where they are the heroes saving the day and keeping people alive. The opportunity for youngsters to explore these hypothetical situations can be key to their cognitive and social development. Make believe helps kids develop the habit of looking towards their future and what types of jobs they might have as they become adults. Visiting a playground and acting out a scene for an hour one day on the R-Town Ambulance might very well start a child down the path of becoming an ambulance driver, nurse, or doctor. This structure works well as part of a standard playground or can be used alongside other dramatic play houses and cars to build imaginary towns or cities. The R-Town Ambulance can be purchased as a non-moving post mounted version or as a bouncing spring mounted version.
