No matter the season, this Beach Playhouse will have children as happy as a clam at high tide. This whimsical bungalow is shaped like a boat - say Noah's Ark - due to its two benches that protrude from the sides. These two benches sit on either side of the playhouse providing ample seating for tired children who need a place to rest after running amuck. There are two large windows that expand the length of the two longest sides. These windows can not only be used for keeping an eye on kids - they also transform the structure into a cabana restaurant, transforming the benches into counters that children can sit at as they wait on their imaginary food. The inside of the structure is left empty so that children can fit any toys or accessories that make playtime fun. The Beach Playhouse is pictured in a tan color but talk to your AAA State of Play Customer Care Personnel about color options and availability.
