Children will mosey on down to the Market Modern Play Facade for all their grocery needs. Whether they're shopping for their imaginary family or gathering supplies for their imaginary restaurant, this adorable little store will provide all their needs. The market takes the appearance of a 19th century country town market with a classic brick appearance and tarp-like roof. On the front of the structure is a fake vegetable stand that showcases a few bunches of appetizing carrots and tomatoes. Past the front entrance is a bench that sits on the other side of the vegetable stand where kids can rest and mingle with other shoppers. The back of the structure opens up to the rest of the play area which prevents children from crowding into one space and also allows for parents, teachers and supervisors to closely monitor the playing children. The Market Modern Play Facade can be used to teach healthy habits and social skills for real-world situations to young children.
