The Adventures in Growing playground structure is formatted to give small children physical activities alongside stimulating creative games. Designed for youngsters 6 to 23 months old, this unit is generously decorated with friendly shapes and attractive lines. A short staircase lets kids climb to a cozy elevated room that then leads to a gentle slide. The upstairs room has viewing portals that let light in and help grownups see inside to make sure everybody is playing nice. And the easy descent of the slide makes it ideal for children just beginning to explore the fun of playing on their own. On one side of the base of the central tower is a lavishly illustrated maze that will enthrall kiddos who enjoy puzzles. And on the side opposite is attached a trio of Bongo Drums, each of which can create a slightly different pitch. The Adventures in Growing structure meets CPSC guidelines and is available in either dazzlingly bright primary colors or subdued natural tones.
