The Bryce Steel Bench without Back by Webcoat is a strikingly attractive seat built of steel. This steel construction of the frame, planks, and legs makes for a hearty and strong unit that is more than capable of handling years of use by individuals of all shapes and sizes. The design's absence of a back opens up installation options, as it allows users to approach the bench from two different directions prior to resting. The clean lines and modern look of the seat make it ideal for placement in all manner of contemporary settings, from pocket parks and retail centers to zoo grounds and museum entrances. A powder coat finish ensures that the paint job will remain brilliant and bright for a considerable time. And if you would like a different tone than the one shown, just contact a AAA State of Play salesperson to learn of currently available alternate colors and any applicable lead times. The Bryce Steel Bench without Back is available in 4, 6, or 8-foot lengths and can function as a portable or surface mounted unit. Surface mounting hardware is sold separately.
