Webcoat's Cascades Bench with Back would be a welcome addition to any number of interior or exterior places where people congregate. It would be an equally great fit in traditional park spaces or modern urban areas. The planking of this bench has the classic appeal of wood without all the troublesome upkeep of that material. The attractively shaped framework combines with the planking to draw the eye and invite resting. The aluminum of the textured polyethylene covered frame is light enough to ease the times you need to reposition the furniture's facing or location. And you can feel ecologically conscious with this purchase, as the planks are built of durable recycled plastic. The Cascades Bench with Back has a portable/surface mount combination to create a versatile bench that can be installed on a wide variety of ground types. The unit has 6-foot and 8-foot length options.
