The 6-foot long Helping Hands Buddy Bench with Perforated Steel with Back by Webcoat is built with the understanding that everybody needs a friend and that this is especially true for young people just starting out in life. Some kids can find pals through active play on swings and slides while others benefit from having mutual access to areas that allow for pleasant conversation and some quiet time. This seat provides just such a spot and its optimistic messaging and handprint artwork encourages youngsters to stop a moment to talk, make plans, or just think to themselves. The perforated metal of the seat permits air to flow through the bench and cool those sitting down. The durable stainless steel is capable of handling regular use by the youth of all shapes and sizes. The frame is powder-coated while the seat and back are covered in a textured polyethylene finish to protect the metal. Both finishes for the 6-foot long Helping Hands Buddy Bench with Perforated Steel with Back are customizable. Secure it in place with a surface or in-ground mount or keep it mobile with the portable mount. Please speak with a salesperson to learn more.
