The Royal Double Sky Walker offers exercisers an efficient calorie-burning activity that will help increase stamina while getting a full-body workout. This product enables individuals to engage in a low impact aerobic routine as the elevated footholds and handhold bar permit you to effortlessly glide your legs back and forth through the air. Compared to a treadmill, it's far less stressful on the joints in the knees, hips, and ankles. This can be a key consideration for older gym patrons who have to account for arthritis or people starting to recover from an injury. With its tough galvanized steel construction, the Royal Double Sky Walker is more than capable of withstanding outside exposure to the harshest effects of the sun and rain. This exercise machine also allows for up to two people to work out at the same time, which should reduce wait times for this item at your health care facility or training yard. Further, the Royal Double Sky Walker features clear directions that will help get folks up and moving in no time.
