Kids can put their strength and physicality to the test with the Mission Ready Climbing Rope. An elaborate and dynamic web of durable rope is woven precisely through a steel structure to create a challenging source of independent play for school-age children. The frame is powder-coat painted to a color of your choice and is resistant to rust and most weather conditions. The nylon-wrapped steel ropes are strong enough to support several kids at once, encouraging them to play together and develop friendships. Leg, arm, and abdominal muscles are worked and strengthened while kids engage in fun and beneficial play on this rope climber. There are plenty of ways to play on the Mission Ready Climbing Rope. Kids can use their imagination to create games and contests, promoting creativity and socialization. The unique design of this complex web of ropes is guaranteed to provide rewarding play for children of many ages.
