The unique geometric design of the Cosmic Crest Rope Climbing Net is unmissable and guaranteed to draw the attention of children. Composed of an elaborate series of connected triangles, this dynamic structure is an excellent physical challenge for elementary-age children. The powder-coat painted frame encases the nylon-covered steel ropes woven strategically throughout that maintain solid and flexible surfaces within the pyramid shape. Younger children can steady themselves on the steel beams or stand on the more tautly pulled ropes when they need to rest. Older kids might want to make their way to the top as quickly as possible or bounce around on the looser sections for even more of a challenge. A wide variety of ages can come up with their own strategies, games and contests to take advantage of the climbing structure while simultaneously strengthening key muscle groups.
