To take a ride on the Fidget Play Spinner, children sit on the durable plastic seat in the shape of the iconic fidget spinner toy. The edges are designed to be held to help maintain balance as the speed increases. A speed regulator is placed within the spinner to promote safety and prevent young children from turning too vigorously. While quick and exhilarating spins may be its primary purpose, the Fidget Play Spinner can also be a place for kids to sit and cool down after long periods of play. Spinners like this one offer many levels of engagement, making them fit for preschool and elementary-age children. The youngest of children may only want to sit at first. Their strength to hold on is limited so they may prefer slow spins. In contrast, the older kids may feel perfectly comfortable spinning as fast as the regulator will allow.
