The Freestanding Curved Post Net Climber by Playground Equipment Dot-com is more than meets the eye. This grid of tautly woven steel ropes wrapped in nylon invites children of many ages and sizes to ascend the structure. It's built with commercial-grade materials that stand up to years of daily use and weathering. Climbing is one of the most beneficial physical activities for growing and developing little ones. As children do what they know best, this net climber targets key muscle groups while promoting hand, foot and eye coordination. Whether they choose to climb alone or join a small group of friends, the climber can progress their sense of balance and enhance their overall agility. Additionally, this simple element requires one to think about their next move, advancing planning and problem-solving skills. The Freestanding Curved Post Net Climber is the perfect installation to round out a diverse and physically beneficial playground.
