The Freestanding Straight Post Overhead Horizon Climber is a modern design of the classic horizontal ladder. This commercial-grade outdoor recreation product can be placed in a variety of locations to add some variety to existing play activities. From churches and daycare facilities to schoolyards and parks, kids will be eager to latch onto the bars hanging above them and test their strength. As they play, school-age children will also be enhancing their physical prowess and building their endurance. Climbing is a proven activity for helping kids develop their gross motor skills, which improves posture and body control. The tough galvanized steel framework of this climber will help the product stand up to years of regular use. And the powder-coated paint finish will keep the Horizon Climber looking great through rain or shine. If you'd like colors other than what's shown, please speak with a AAA State of Play salesperson to learn more about further options and discuss scheduling.
