Never miss a second with the ultra-durable Alphatec Basketball Shot Clocks from Gared. An essential part of the game, shot clocks need to be visible so players and coaches can tell how much time is left. That is why each unit is 15-inches tall and features 100,000-hour rated LED lights that will last for years without needing to be replaced. These red lights are exceptionally bright and can be seen from 300 feet away, allowing players, coaches, and fans in attendance to clearly keep track of the time left to shoot. Though bright, they are low power consumption units that keep operating costs low. The 22-gauge galvanized steel construction creates a durable unit while a powder-coat finish keeps it in pristine condition. These clocks can be placed on a variety of flat surfaces and include two pre-drilled holes on the top and bottom flanges for mounting. The package comes with two shot clocks, an operator's keyboard, and a junction box cover.
