PlaygroundEquipment.com's Freestanding Curved Ladder Climber is a simple yet exciting addition to any playground. This product functions as both a ladder climber and an overhead monkey bar set. The arching curve shape adds an extra challenge that will entice elementary-age kids without intimidating heights that may deter them. Children are sure to feel their imaginations kick in as they freely swing and scale the structure from bar to bar. They can have fun while simultaneously improving upper body and arm strength. When children swing back and forth with their legs and reach the next bar, they can also improve their agility. Climbing equipment also helps with attaining full control over their developing balance while advancing their hand-eye coordination. This product is built to last, with its powdered-coated galvanized steel construction, which prevents rust and keeps the vibrant color of the structure. The Freestanding Curved Ladder Climber can be customized using a variety of colors, giving you many options to choose from to match your outdoor site.
