The Rockwell Quadruple Teeter is a piece of playground equipment that provides bouncing fun for up to four children, ages 2-5. In addition to being fun to play on, the Rockwell Quadruple Teeter promotes cooperative, synergistic play, which is essential for the proper social development of children. The Quadruple Teeter is made of heavy-duty galvanized steel, which is both weather-resistant and durable. Several bright color schemes are available, which help ensure that the Quadruple Teeter is noticed by kids and parents. The steel springs ensure whoever goes up will come back down to the ground safe and sound. Unlike a traditional seesaw, this reimagined teeter remains low to the ground. This will give younger children the confidence to hop on. Add this teeter totter to any daycare, preschool or park to offer a place for young children to socialize and experience beneficial play.
