Lilypad Lagoon is an innovative offering from AAA State of Play, featuring several distinct ways for kids to get active while at play. Whether kids on your playground are looking to slide, climb, or play some bongo drums, Lilypad Lagoon has everything they'll need for an afternoon of fun. At the base of the structure are eleven perforated steel bars, all of which hold up the Lilypad Lagoon and support it structurally. Also included are sturdy bars lining the edges, enclosing the elevated play area and promoting safety for kids who use the structure. This play system features two methods of reaching the spiral slide at the tall end of the structure: a steel staircase, as well as a rotationally-molded plastic climbing wall. However kids choose to climb the structure and reach its highest point, they'll surely be having fun while doing so.
