Parents love pushing their small children on the swing, and the Multi-Generational See Me Swing takes things a step further. It allows parents and caretakers to swing in tandem with their kid while facing them, ensuring the child's safety and increasing the bond between adults and children. The Multi-Generational See Me Swing includes a bucket seat that can accommodate kids between 6-23 months in age, or those between 24-47 months, as well as a belt seat that's great for adults or even older children. Swings are a great way to help young children build their motor skills and spatial awareness, and with the Multi-Generational See Me Swing, parents and caretakers of young children gain the ability to help their child adjust to the height of the swing set. Thanks to its chain-based suspension system, the Multi-Generational See Me Swing is a safe, effective swing set that young kids will love and parents will appreciate.
