The perfect fit for children who are just gaining mobility, the Infant Corral provides ample space for infants to move around and interact with their environment. The Infant Corral has a variety of subtle yet impactful features designed specifically for kids ages 6-23 months. For instance, the cutouts on the inside of the Infant Corral allow small children to feel around and trace the shapes with their fingers, giving them a sensory play experience that will help grow their still-developing minds. Similarly, the small rock panels attached to each quadrant of the Infant Corral give kids a low-risk way of exploring different textures. The ball maze panel in the middle of the Infant Corral offers another interesting sensory experience, as little ones can rotate it and cause the small balls to go through the different inlets. There's no shortage of ways for infants to play within the Infant Corral.
