The Royal Double Country Skier brings the benefits of skiing down a snowy mountain side to you. Adolescent teenagers and adults will work their cores, arms, and legs in a motion similar to an elliptical machine. Designed for two to exercise concurrently, this unit takes the elliptical onto the other side of the glass providing a free exercise experience for your patrons. This structure consists of powder-coat painted steel that is ideal for battling outdoor elements and a rotationally molded plastic display in the center. The display is important for improving the experience of your park patrons as it explains in detail how to use the machine. This is an excellent addition for areas with a more elderly population as the motion lessens the strain on knees while giving the same benefits of running or walking by eliminating the characteristic pounding motion that can be so difficult on the knee joint. Put your feet in the steel footholds, grasp the two handles, and glide your legs and arms back and forth in a fluid walking or running motion. Choose up to two colors to set the tone for patrons' workouts. For those with a tighter budget, the Double Glider is another similar option to consider.
