Tighten up your pectoral muscles with the Double Chest Press. One of the areas that men tend to focus on the most when exercising is their upper bodies, specifically, chest and arms. For women, while most would not specifically focus the chest per se, it happens to help with the other areas that they would like to tighten up. The Double Chest Press machine is designed as part of an outdoor gym or fitness area offering a simple body weight variation of the exercise. When working out, the user sits with their feet squarely shoulder-width apart on the ground and pushes the bars forward which lifts up their seat using their own body weight in each repetition. The station has two seats for two different occupants to work at once. Works well at a park, beach or other outdoor venues where the community is wanting to get in shape. Comes in your choice of up to two different custom colors and the seats come in gray rotationally molded plastic only. Add a set of instructions by ordering the Royal Chest Press instead.
