Having an arm machine, like the Double Lat Pulldown, is an essential element in any outdoor gym. Most patrons, whether male or female, enjoy having well-toned arms. The Double Lat Pulldown machine works the pushing and pulling muscles in the arms by using the user's own bodyweight as the resistance. The simple design guards against major wear and tear by reducing the number of moving components in addition to its already durable powder coat painted steel construction, available in up to two different custom colors per piece. The Double Lat Pulldown is quintessential to any outdoor gymnasium, exercise area or exercise trail and works well with almost any age group. In areas where the users might want detailed directions, the Royal Lat Pull Down offers a slightly more sturdy construction with additional instructions on a centrally located board. Your community will find getting into a shape a snap!
