Children need to engage in exercises that strengthen the upper body, legs and core so they are less susceptible to injury. Not to mention, physical activity helps to improve balance and develop motor skills. Playground equipment often consists of swings and slides that do absolutely nothing for building upper body strength. This Round Trapeze Ring by Child Works is the perfect addition to any activity space. They are available in five exciting colors, so children are attracted to them. These rings are inviting to children to hold, hang from and just have fun. They are made from high quality aluminum with solid construction to meet CPSC guidelines. At this affordable price, you do not have to think twice about ordering one in every color either.
