The Playscape Ring Climber is a great addition to playgrounds and parks where younger children, age 2-5, play. The equipment is composed of five circular tubes, with a varying number of metal rings. The child can climb inside of the ring shaped vertical tubes, and they can climb from tube to tube. This great developmental playground climber easily starts to build strength and develop skills necessary for climbing like handgrip and hand-eye coordination. Climbing on the Playscape Ring Climber will also help develop increase leg and wrist strength in very young children. Kids will also develop good social skills as they begin to build friendships and play with other kids on this climber. Parents can feel confident that their children are safe on this climber because it meets the guidelines for playground safety laid out by both ASTM and CPSC.
