The Raiders of the Lost Play System is ready for a voyage. This unit is embellished with many nautical details for a small pirate to be. Plastic Parrot Toppers perch expectantly overhead; observing the rowdy play below. Sails extend skyward and greet far-away spectators with their spectacular layout. This structure's rotationally molded plastic panels are designed to look like ocean-battered wood planks. The Ship's Bow piece is the climax of this system's charm. It is adorned with a plastic anchor and portholes that bring a flare of authenticity. Children will not be able to resist the swashbuckling pretend time that will ensue. The Raiders of the Lost Play System is more than flashy, it is a direct imaginative release for children. The ground-loving children will find an assortment of activities optimizing space above and at ground level. The bolder kids will find the two elevated slides more than enough to satiate their appetites.
